Our Mission

To nurture fellowship among Congregational Christian Churches and to support ministries of the local church in its community and to the world, all in the name of Christ.

The Congregational Way

Congregational Churches are sometimes known as the “Church of the Pilgrims” after the small congregations of the early 1600s. The people of these congregations moved from England to Holland and then to the new world in pursuit of religious freedom. From them, we inherited a wonderful spiritual heritage--one that is uniquely suited to our contemporary world.

This is a tradition that has deep convictions based upon the Word of God as each person interprets that Word according to the dictates of conscience, under the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit. This naturally attracts men and women of genuine conviction, of adventurous faith, and of gracious regard for each other’s sincerity to the Congregational Christian fellowship.

Since every Congregationalist possesses full liberty of conscience in interpreting the Gospel, we are a diverse group of people united under Christ. We believe there is strength in diversity and by it, there are unending opportunities to learn from each other and to grow in faith.

- Christ alone is the head of the church.
- All church members are spiritually equal and called to the work of ministry.
- Every local church is autonomous and complete.
- Each local church is called into wider associations of fellowship.
- Believers are bound one to another in voluntary covenant.
- Every Christian possesses full liberty of conscience in interpreting the Gospel.
- The Bible is fully sufficient as our guide in matters of faith and practice and will inspire individuals and direct the church with fresh light and truth for every generation.

We're there when you need:

- Help finding your next minister
- Resources to start a new church
- Training for church leaders
- Assurance that your mission dollars are making a difference
- Advising during times of structural change or conflict
- Resources for stewardship, Christian education, youth ministry and revitalization
- Better understanding of the Congregational Way

Benefits of Belonging

As a member of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches, your church joins with other churches around the country for mutual encouragement and support. By sharing fellowship through the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches, each church is made stronger by access to a multitude of resources and expertise.

Every member church is fully self-governing and spiritually complete.

Congregationalists believe that God has given the local church every power and gift necessary for its spiritual life and ministries.

There is no authority outside of the local church except for Christ, who is the head of the church. There is no other ecclesiastical authority over the local church.

The local church is free to determine its statement of faith, select and ordain its clergy, and maintain stewardship of its resources and property.

Respecting the ability of each local church to discern God's intentions and purpose for them, the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches does not pass resolutions on social or political issues nor does it make statements on behalf of or binding upon the member churches.

Membership in the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches is:

- Voluntary
- Enriching
- Encouraging
- Faith-Filled
